

Eat Like Phil in Madrid

All eleven stops from Phil Rosenthal's Madrid episode — verified July 2026, mapped, and wired into your agenda. For Mark & Niels.

Base: Calle del Príncipe de Vergara 248, 28016 Madrid (Chamartín) · Metro Colombia (L8+L9) & Pío XII (L9), each ~6 min walk

All "leave by" times target a 19:00 arrival — but note each card's kitchen hours: Madrid dines late.

The 19:00 problem (and the fix)

- Madrid kitchens mostly reopen 20:00–21:00. Sure bets at 19:00: Ponzano (2), MO (5), Casa Dani (6, Mon–Fri), La Casa del Abuelo (8), San Ginés (10), San Miguel (11).
- For the rest: arrive 19:00, have a caña on a terrace nearby, walk in for the first seating — the most Madrid move there is.
- A 20:30 reservation marks you as a tourist but works fine as a compromise.

Metro in one minute

- Tarjeta Multi (€2.50 at red machines) + 10-trip Metrobús; one card validates for both of you.
- Metro 6:00–1:30 daily. Later: night buses from Cibeles or Cabify (~€12–15 home).
- Golden routes: L9 south to Núñez de Balboa (Salamanca + the L5 nightlife line) · L9 → Av. de América → L7 for the Ponzano cluster · L8 from Colombia = your 15-min airport link.
- Google Maps handles Madrid transit well. Official apps: Metro de Madrid, EMT Madrid.

Wander here: After dinner: wander Paseo de la Habana south to see the Bernabéu lit up (15 min), loop back past Mercado de Chamartín's quiet streets, or take a pre-dinner turn around Parque de Berlín. This is residential Madrid — relaxed, local, zero tourists.

1 Sacha

The bistro where Madrid's chefs eat — Phil's hideaway pick

What Phil had: Basque-influenced classics at Sacha Hormaechea's legendary bistro (since 1972).

Salamanca · stops 6, 7

Wander here: Perfect early-evening territory: tortilla at the market, then window-shop down Serrano — or the quieter Claudio Coello / Lagasca — to the Puerta de Alcalá, and slip into Retiro for golden hour. Calle de Jorge Juan is the elegant restaurant row; Museo Lázaro Galdiano crowns Serrano at no. 122.

6 Casa Dani · Mercado de la Paz

Madrid's benchmark tortilla, inside a real neighbourhood market

What Phil had: The famous tortilla de patata at Casa Dani; lemon-smoked oysters at Oh Délice; jamón at La Boquette.

Booking cheat-sheet

- Book days ahead: Botín (9), Sacha (1), Sala de Despiece (3) — links on their cards.
- Phone only: Barrera (4) — “Hola, quería reservar una mesa para dos, el jueves a las nueve de la noche.”
- No bookings: StreetXO (7) — arrive at 20:00 opening or eat at the bar.
- Walk-in fine: Ponzano (2), MO (5), Casa Dani (6), La Casa del Abuelo (8), San Ginés (10), San Miguel (11).

Phil × your agenda

- Mon 28 Sep — Sacha (1) is already your splurge night. Phil approves.
- Tue 29 Sep — La Casa del Abuelo (8) slots in before the Café Central jazz set (8 min walk).
- Thu 1 Oct — the Ponzano crawl IS Phil territory: El Doble → Restaurante Ponzano (2) → Sala de Despiece (3); Barrera (4) and MO (5) are minutes away.
- Fri 2 Oct — post-midnight churros at San Ginés (10), exactly as planned.
- Sat 3 Oct — Botín (9) lunch is the alternative to Malacatín's cocido; San Miguel (11) is a look-not-eat stop nearby.
- Weekday lunch — Casa Dani (6) + StreetXO bar (7) make a Salamanca double, 2 min apart.

Mind the details

- StreetXO moved: Phil's site still says Serrano 52 — it is now Serrano 47, 3rd floor of El Corte Inglés.
- Sacha closes weekends; Barrera closes Monday; Casa Dani & Mercado de la Paz close Sunday (Sat from 14:30).
- Your guide files Mercado de San Miguel under “Don'ts” — Phil's bonus scene is the reason it's here at all. Walk through, spend your appetite elsewhere.
- Companion file: the interactive HTML guide (same content, live maps) — WhatsApp it to Niels; it opens in any browser.
